

Stupendous Purchasing Power of the Dry Goods Union

Makes Possible Our

Powerful Low Price Demonstration

THROUGH our most efficient and perfected organization of buyers, ably supplemented by our Membership in the Dry Goods Union of New York, an institution having a purchasing power annually of untold millions, we are in a position to secure superior quality merchandise at prices much less than many prominent Dry Goods Houses in this or any other city throughout the United States. A demonstration of giving better goods for the same money, or the same goods for less money, will be held this week.

ROOSEVELT PLANNING TWO YEARS' GAME HUNT

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Unless there is a change in his present intentions and unless he should be relieved President Roosevelt will leave the United States soon after the expiration of his term on March 4 next, and will not return for two years. There have been several reports in the last few months regarding the plans of Mr. Roosevelt for the disposition of his time after his retirement from the presidency.

From the president, some of them have been authoritative. It is possible, however, to make a positive statement as far as the present plans of the President are concerned. He has not yet decided whether he will go to Africa. Recently he had a long conversation with a man who has spent much time in hunting in Africa, and the President was intensely interested in the subject. He feels that he has earned the right to put in a portion of his time in the sport which he has been pursuing since he was a boy. He is likely to go to Africa. BASKETBALL DOVES MEET DODGERS TO-DAY ATHLETICS TECH GAMES WITH MAINE BOXING

SCHOOLBOY MEET IN STADIUM

THE STADIUM, Soldiers Field, May 2.—With an entry list of 184, the outdoor in track and field championships were held this afternoon.

It being the twenty-third meeting, nature there had to be some losses on items. And it came in the way of unseasonable weather and the fact that Andover, the school which was on the date to make a great battle for first place, was formed at last into a team of some of the best athletes because of faculty ruling.

There were almost seven hundred spectators on the field, which was somewhat below the number a year ago, but the fact of the high class order and the standard of competition was not less.

Kirk's made greater efforts to win the title, championship prize with Andover by himself, but had Worcester Academy to contend with as well as the best of the Boston schools and outsiders.

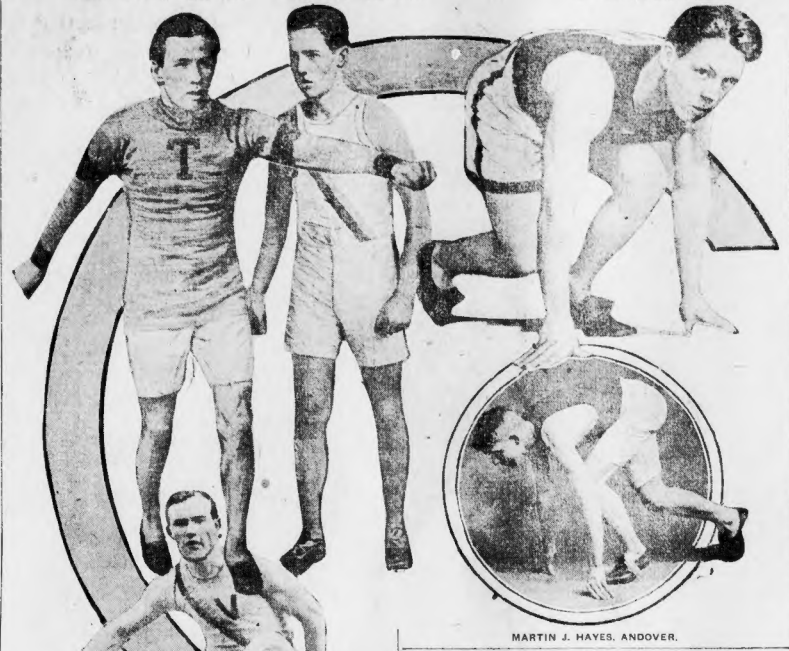

Volkmann's school, which was the best of the high class order and the standard of competition was not less.

TECH ATHLETES IN DUAL MEET WITH MAINE

Technology's crack track aggregation went on against University of Maine boys at Tech Field in Brockton this afternoon.

Some interesting individual performances are to be expected, and the meet as a whole will be more closely contested than last year, when the Black Bay team had a walk over.

Tech has been greatly weakened by the loss of White, who was the 880 yard runner in the spring, and the team will have to fight with a field of stars. Salisbury, the quarter-mile and relay man, is also in it. Maine's team is in good shape.

HARVARD NINE AT WORCESTER

Mr. Jackson's Opportunity

It Has Come at Last—He Will Now Help the New Haven Swallow the Boston & Maine

Stockholders of the New Haven Railroad will be pleased to observe that the Hon. James F. Jackson has been employed by the Business Men's Merger League to help legalize the consolidation of the New Haven and the Boston & Maine Railroads.

Mr. Jackson's long experience as the representative of the people, at the head of the Massachusetts Railroad Commission, has given him a knowledge of the people's affairs in their relation to the railroads that will make him an extremely valuable counsellor in any effort to establish or strengthen a transportation monopoly.

Mr. Jackson knows both the strength and the weakness of the State in its efforts to control a powerful corporation such as the New Haven road already is. If there is any loose joint in the armor of the State, he, as the former chairman of the Railroad Commission, will know where to thrust in his javelin and deliver telling blows.

Last Fall Thomas L. Higen, then a candidate for Governor, aroused great indignation in a few breasts by declaring he had heard that Mr. Jackson was going to resign from the Railroad Commission and that Mr. Jackson was going to act as counsel for the New Haven road.

These statements by Mr. Higen brought forth indignant denials from various persons, including Mr. Jackson himself and the Governor who was keeping him in office.

Since that time Mr. Jackson has resigned.

And now Mr. Jackson has become counsel to a so-called "Business Men's Merger League," the object of which is to help the New Haven road obtain legal possession of the Boston & Maine.

Some of the leading men in this Merger League are: T. JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, New Haven stockholder. Led the campaign in 1900 to turn over the Boston & Albany railroad to the New York Central. Up to that time the Boston & Albany was a valuable asset to the State. Since that it has been a joke.

TIMOTHY E. BYRNES, Vice-president of the New Haven road.

JAMES L. RICHARDS, Head of the Gas Trust, New Haven stockholder.

JOHN S. LAWRENCE, Son of Amory A. Lawrence, a New Haven director.

FREDERICK P. FISH, Professional trust promoter, former head of the Telephone Trust.

In a campaign speech delivered at City Hall, Northampton, on October 19, last Fall, Governor Guild said:

Scarcely a year goes by in which Chairman Jackson is not given flattering proposals to quit the public service. He is now considering such an opportunity. It does not come from the New York & New Haven & Hartford railroad, or any railroad. He has not tendered his resignation.

Can it be that his position as counsel to the Business Men's Merger League is the OPPORTUNITY which Mr. Jackson was considering on the nineteenth day of last October?

The formation of the League was not announced to the public until April 14 of the present year, but, undoubtedly, the same patriotic impulses that actuated Timothy E. Byrnes, vice-president of the New Haven Railroad; T. Jefferson Coolidge, who put through the Boston & Albany lease; Edwin S. Webster of the Street Railway Trust; Charles Hayden of the Banking Trust; Henry L. Higginson, whose firm sold the Boston & Maine stock to the New Haven road; Frederick P. Fish of the Telephone Trust; James L. Richards of the Gas Trust; Charles F. Choate, Jr., counsel for the New Haven road, and John F. Burnett, the lobbyist, when they formed the Business Men's Merger League on April 14, 1908, stirred also in their breasts on October 19 last.

If this is the opportunity that Mr. Jackson was considering while he was looking after the people's interests in relation to the railroads, both he and the Business Men's Merger League are to be congratulated upon the foresight that has placed such an experienced and capable lawyer in charge of the merger campaign.

The people also are to be congratulated. They may learn from this how easy it will be for them, THROUGH THEIR BOARD OF RAILROAD COMMISSIONERS, to control the New Haven road when it owns ALL the transportation lines in New England!

Courage and Charity

By Winifred Black

A CRAZY man sent word to a Denver priest the other day that he was going to kill him. The priest walked up to the street to his church the next morning in the bright Colorado sun, and, lurking behind a tree, he saw the crazy man, who was waiting around the corner of the road we all must walk, brandishing a weapon in his hand.

The priest crossed the street, walked up to the man, laid his hand on his shoulder and said: "You are hungry, my friend, come with me and eat."

And when the crazy man had eaten and had rested, the priest took him to a private sanitarium, put him in the best room in the place and paid for his care and treatment in advance.

When some one spoke to the priest about what he had done he smiled and said: "It was nothing; the man was hungry; hunger sometimes goes to the brain," and then he would talk no more about the matter.

A strange man, this Denver priest, a very strange man. He does what we all pretend we should do when we go to church that we would do.

Master. He actually behaves as if he thought the Sermon on the Mount really amounted to something and as if the story of the Good Samaritan had an honest meaning in it.

I wonder if that priest is not a very wise as well as a very good man. We are so afraid of death, we ordinary little ants who call ourselves men.

We shiver and try to hide at the very idea of dying, and somewhere in the clear sunshine and the bright air we must walk around grim old death himself, grinning at our antics.

We can't get away from him—all the running and the sneaking and the begging and the pleading and the hiding are in vain.

He'll meet us some day, somewhere, somehow.

I wonder if it's worth while to try to bribe him, win his comrades to keep his distance a little longer. That Denver priest might have walked to his doom when he crossed the street in the clear sunshine and laid his hand on the poor, crazed wretch's shoulder.

What then? The world would have been poorer for a good man—that's all. The priest—that did it matter to him whether he died yesterday or must die to-morrow?

It did matter that he lived or he died like a man and not a coward. I wonder if we've not lost all of us look at things through the dim haze of a cowardly courage as did this Denver priest.

MOTHERS' DAY

Wear a White Flower the Second Sunday in May
In Honor of "The Best Mother on Earth"—Your Own

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

A VERY pretty idea has been sent out to materialize in a very pretty custom, the observance of Mothers' Day.

The thought originated in the brain of a man whose signature of his typewritten letter is now difficult to decipher. It is A. Jarvis, as nearly as can be surmised. The letter comes from Philadelphia and reads as follows:

"One day of the year—the second Sabbath of next month—every man, woman and child who loves his or her mother and feels her to be the best mother in the world, a debt of gratitude that cannot be repaid, is asked to wear a white carnation to her honor, and as a pledge of moving thought of her in the future. If she be not living, then bless the life of some other good mother, in her memory."

"In other words, we want the second Day—a day for loyal sons and daughters to honor their mothers through their observance that every true mother, rich or poor, cherishes; a day to make this noble parent feel that in the hearts of her children she is 'Queen of the May,' and that 'Mothers' Day' for this reason is the gladder, happiest, merriest day of all the year."

"At my suggestion 1,500 white carnations were distributed at the Academy of Music last Friday at a meeting of Old Folks, and if you could have seen the faces of those dear mothers beaming when this simple white flower was given you would have appreciated what little simple remembrance men to them through the observance of the day, and of you can. Ask every man, woman and child to wear a white flower in honor of his or her good mother this second Sabbath of May, and through a gift, kind words or a letter, a love letter, make his or her mother feel she is 'Queen of the May' Sabbath."

"I will not limit your aid to spreading the observance of the day, and of you can. Ask every man, woman and child to wear a white flower in honor of his or her good mother this second Sabbath of May, and through a gift, kind words or a letter, a love letter, make his or her mother feel she is 'Queen of the May' Sabbath."

Plans and Objects
THE objects and plans of the movement are stated as follows:

MOTHERS' DAY.
Objects.—To bring the lives of mothers, and to make them more honored, loved and protected by their children; to remind sons and daughters—especially boys, servants, sons and women—of their noblest duty to their mothers; to make each mother feel that her children are in her hearts, and that she is 'Queen of the May' Sabbath."

Time.—Second Sabbath of May.
Every man, woman and child who feels that he or she has a mother, and that she is 'Queen of the May' Sabbath, is asked to wear this 'Mother's Day' flower, and for one to give to someone else to wear this 'Mother's Day' flower.

Plans.—Two white flowers—one for yourself and one for you to give to someone else to wear this 'Mother's Day' flower.
